Cardijn Association – Josef Cardijn

The name of our association links us to Josef Cardijn, a Belgian Catholic worker's priest (1882 - 1967). He was the founder of the Young Christian Workers and later became Cardinal Josef Cardijn. His engagement had an international and ecumenical impact. The 'see – judge – act' process he developed is the foundation of liberation theology and is used by many Christian social initiatives world wide.

Our Aims

The Cardijn Association works for ...

- Liberation Theology – a liberating theology for changing society, work and economy in Europe.
- Education and Training for Change – training and workshops for people who are engaged in working for change in living and working conditions.

Our Basis

The Cardijn Association is independent and ecumenical and it is based on the ideas developed by Josef Cardijn: The value and dignity of every person, especially every young worker, as well as to the co-development of just and sustainable society.

Our Activities

The Cardijn Association ...

- organises seminars and workshops on themes which are related to theology, the world of work, economy and society.
- develops and offers training for professionals and volunteers who are working with people locally for the improvement of the living and working conditions – Key word: Empowerment.
- publishes material related to the Christian critique of and engagement with the fields of the economy and society.
- supports projects, people and groups which are engaged in accordance with our aims, such as educational projects, youth work, raising awareness ...
- actively participates in European ecumenical networks and initiatives.
